

Community Collaborative Research: Interdisciplinary Conceptual and Methodological Approaches

Collaboration between communities and researchers will be critical to 21st Century research. This free symposium brings together six researchers from interdisciplinary backgrounds to address myriad conceptual and methodological issues related to the evaluation of processes and outcomes of collaborative research.

WHEN:

Monday, May 18, 2009;
8:45am-12:30pm

WHERE:

Columbia University
School of Social Work
1255 Amsterdam Ave.
Concourse Level, Rm. C03
New York NY 10027

CONTACT:

Prema Filippone
v. (212) 851-2113
e. plf2107@columbia.edu

Co-Sponsored by

Office of the Associate Dean for Research & Academic Affairs,
Community Collaborative Board
(Funded by Columbia University
Diversity Program; PI: Rogério
M. Pinto, PhD),
NYSPI Division of Biostatistics
and Data Coordination

ORGANIZER

A FREE SYMPOSIUM FEATURING:

Mapping the Ecology of Community-Researcher Collaboration
Rogério Pinto, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor
Columbia University School of Social Work

PANELISTS

Biostatistics in the Emerging Brave New World
Naihua Duan, Ph.D.
Professor of Biostatistics, Departments of Psychiatry and Biostatistics at Columbia University and Director, Biostatistics and Data Coordination at NYS Psychiatric Institute

The Risk-Based Allocation Design in Evaluation Research
Bruce Levin, Ph.D.
Professor and Chair, Department of Biostatistics
Columbia University School of Public Health

The Role of Qualitative Methods in Community-Focused Research and Empowerment
Deborah Padgett, Ph.D.
Professor
New York University School of Social Work

Comprehensive Dynamic Intervention Trials
Bruce Rapkin, Ph.D.
Professor in the Division of Community Collaboration and Implementation Science at Albert Einstein College of Medicine

DISCUSSANT

Mary McKay, Ph.D.
Professor of Psychiatry & Community Medicine Mount Sinai
School of Medicine